Where's happiness?

-A Buddhist folklore-

As Remembered by Into Champon, Esq., C.C.I.M.

A long ... long ... long ... time ago, after noticing that monks at a monastery were always happy, a dog walked inside the monastery and asked the head monk: "Where can I find happiness?"

The head monk replied: "Your tail."

The dog started walking ... then running in circle to chase his own tail until his head spun...

He turned to the head monk and said: "The closer I got to my tail, the more dizzy I got. That was not happiness!"

The monk replied: "If you walk straight, happiness will always follow you! ..."
